

The second day was rich in serious thoughts. First of all complex problem of the air was presented by Węgloty Theatre – thanks to this performance I understood the importance of the air for people, and that we never think about it in such way. Then, Realistyczny Theatre was presenting the fragments of poetry, recalling the memory of Robert Paluchowski, who is no longer with us. Next, there was an educative discussion about the world and changes that are needed. I cannot agree with every opinion I've heard, but each of them were impulses for my thoughts, which I found really positive.
