

The theatre project Powietrze e(ks)misje is trying to define the element, natural force that is very often forgotten. The performers are interpreting the air not only in ecological context, but mainly in existential aspect. This is work in progress, kind of a journey in which the spectators are invited.