

Once upon a time there was a little bird. This bird was always travelling travelling and travelling. He had seen many extraordinary places but where he was always turning back was the theatre land. In this land once he listened to a sound that seduced him so much that he approached to it. It was another bird, whose name was Wegajty. Wegajty bird kept on producing this sound while the first bird started to see clearly a vision in front of his eyes. And he started to fly higher and higher and higher.
